DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

2. Claims 1-5,7,9,11-13,22 and 24-29 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Harriman et al. (ASHRAE IAQ seminar 2001).

Harriman et al. disclose using desiccant or mechanical dehumidifiers to dry out materials that have absorbed excessive moisture during construction. This practice allows building projects to stay on schedule while limiting the potential for mold problems. Fig.5 shows a typical temporary enclosure and doorway erected by a drying contractor to retain the dry air in the part of building that needs it. To dry out moist material, the drying air must be contained. Keeping doors closed is never popular with workers, but the irritation can be minimized through simple springs on lightweight swinging doors. Hermetic air seals are not necessary in building drying, but humid outdoor winds must be kept out of the area being dried. Fig.5 shows vapor barriers are installed in some areas. Also, using dry air during interior wall installation reduces the risk of hidden mold after the project is complete. The building materials can be kept dry during construction, the risk of mold growth is significantly reduced. Dehumidifiers make it a trivial matter to meet the MFMA specification. Fig.7 presents the drying times for drywall seams. Under the principals of inherency, if a prior art device, in its normal and usual operation, would necessarily perform the method claimed, then the method claimed will be considered to be anticipated by the prior art device. When the prior art device is the same as a device described in the specification for carrying out the claimed method, it can be assumed the device will inherently perform the claimed process. Ir re King, 801 F.2d 1324, 231 USPQ 136 (Fed. Cir. 1986).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 8 and 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Harriman et al. (ASHRAE IAQ seminar 2001) in view of Munters (Munters 2000/2001).

Harriman et al. discloses the invention substantially as claimed. However, Harriman et al. does not disclose heating with dehumidification. Munters discloses dehumidification and heating in the same field of endeavor for the purpose of enhance moisture removal. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the apparatus of Harriman et al. with a heating in view of Munters so as to improve dehumidification.
